“We have meanwhile set up a process and there are also independent institutions monitoring which objectives of our G7 meetings we actually achieve. When it comes to these goals we have a compliance rate of about 80%, according to the University of Toronto. Germany, with its 87%, comes off pretty well. That means that next year too, under the Japanese G7 presidency, we are going to check where we stand in comparison to what we have discussed with each other now. So a lot of what we have resolved to do here together is something that we are going to have to work very hard at over the next few months. But I think that it has become apparent that we, as the G7, want to assume responsibility far beyond the prosperity in our own countries. That’s why today’s outreach meetings, that is the meetings with our guests, were also of great importance.”

Chancellor Angela Merkel, Schloss Elmau, 8 June 2015

G7 summits are a moment for people to judge whether aspirational intent is met by concrete commitments. The G7 Research Group provides a report card on the implementation of G7 and G20 commitments. It is a good moment for the public to interact with leaders and say, you took a leadership position on these issues — a year later, or three years later, what have you accomplished?

Background

The modern world trading system was institutionally established with the Bretton Woods system after the Second World War. This was done through the creation of the International Trade Organization, a specialized agency to handle trade within the United Nations. On 30 October 1947, the first international trade regulation agreement was signed, known as the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT). GATT came into effect in January 1948 and regulated international trade by directing signatories to reduce tariff and non-tariff barriers to trade.

On 1 January 1995, the World Trade Organization (WTO) was formed in Geneva, Switzerland, as a successor to GATT. The WTO is a unified multilateral trade framework which calls to eliminate tariffs and other trade barriers in trade agreements and in the general conduct of international trade, settle disputes between parties of a trade agreement, and monitor the trade policies of WTO members. While GATT focused primarily on reciprocal reductions in tariffs on manufactured goods, the WTO has also included measures relating to non-tariff trade barriers, such as subsidy policies and regulatory standards. The WTO’s goal of reducing trade barriers for goods, services, and intellectual property is currently the centre of the liberal international trading system which aims to fight protectionist trade measures and keep markets open.

Trade as a commitment issue appeared at the first G6 summit – the 1975 Rambouillet Summit – in response to the rise in protectionism following the 1973-1975 Recession. In the Declaration of Rambouillet, G6 members pledged to make “new efforts in the areas of world trade,” “restore growth in the volume of world trade,” and accelerate multilateral trade negotiations. The 1975 Rambouillet Summit is also the first time in which G6 members promised to take unilateral domestic action, like policy or legal changes, to facilitate international trade.\textsuperscript{2302}

Discussions regarding unfair trade practices first appeared at the 1982 Versailles Summit, where leaders pledged to “rule out the use of [their] exchange rates to gain unfair competitive advantages.”\textsuperscript{2303} After the 1982 Versailles Summit, “unfair trade practices” were not mentioned again at G7 summits until the 2009 G8 L’Aquila Summit, where the term “level playing field” was first applied in an economic context.\textsuperscript{2304} However, since the 2009 L’Aquila Summit, the terms “level playing field” or “unfair trade practices” have been mentioned in every communiqué, except for the 2010 Muskoka Summit.

At the Uruguay Round in 1994, the WTO introduced new measures and policies intended to mitigate unfair trade practices and allow countries to fight against unfair trade practices within the WTO framework through a dispute settlement process.\textsuperscript{2305} These policies included the Anti-Dumping Agreement, Subsidies and Countervailing Measures, Safeguards, Trade Policy Review Mechanism, Dispute Settlement Understanding, and several industry-specific measures to ensure fair practices across all industries around the world.

The 2000 Okinawa Summit was the first to pursue “facilitat[ion of] cross-border e-commerce by promoting further liberalisation” of international trade on information and communications technology.\textsuperscript{2306} The 2007 Heiligendamm Summit was the first to promote the facilitation of international trade through an increase in enforcement of intellectual property rights.\textsuperscript{2307} The 2008 Hokkaido Toyako Summit Declaration forwarded the first linkage between facilitating international trade.\textsuperscript{2308} In light of the 2008 global financial crisis, the 2009 L’Aquila Summit continued the trend of “reject[ing] protectionism of any kind” during recessionary periods.\textsuperscript{2309} The 2013 Lough Erne Summit is the first to facilitate international trade through the reduction and “streamlining” of “trade bureaucracy.”\textsuperscript{2310}

At the 2017 Taormina Summit, G7 leaders pledged to “[stand] firm against all unfair trade practices.”\textsuperscript{2311} The 2017 Taormina Summit marked a shift in the G7’s prioritization of eliminating unfair trade practices, with the communiqué listing out for the first time, in detail, the types of practices that the G7 consider to be unfair, including protectionism, dumping, barriers to trade, forced technology transfers, subsidies and other practices that would “distort markets.”

At 2018 Charlevoix Summit, G7 leaders “acknowledged that free, fair and mutually beneficial trade and investment, while creating reciprocal benefits are key engines for growth and job creation.” The leaders also “underlined the crucial role of a rules-based international trading system and continue to fight protectionism.”

At the 2019 Biarritz Summit, G7 leaders declared that “the G7 is committed to open and fair trade and to the stability of the global economy.” The G7 also declared its desire to “overhaul the WTO to improve effectiveness with regard to intellectual property protection, to settle disputes more swiftly and to eliminate unfair trade practices.”

Commitment Features

The G7 commitment states that the members will “secure our future prosperity by championing freer, fairer trade within a reformed trading system.” The welfare target of this commitment is to secure future prosperity, interpreted as economic prosperity. The instruments to achieve this welfare target are by championing 1. free trade; 2. fair trade; and 3. within a reformed trading system.

“Championing” is understood to mean the support or defense of a principle. The term “trade” is understood to mean the exchange of goods, services, and intellectual property. “Freer trade” is the gradual lowering of trade barriers through negotiation. “Fair trade” is the trade within a rules-based system “dedicated to open, fair and undistorted competition.” Thus, “fairer trade” is understood to be trade that is of greater adherence to this system.

The term “reformed” means “changed for the better.” A “system” is “a form of social, economic, or political organization or practice.” Thus, “trading system” is understood to be the economic organization of trade. G7 members have identified the WTO as the multilateral trading system in need of reform. For evaluating this commitment, working within a reformed trading system also requires active involvement in said reform. Actions taken should make the WTO more viable and durable. Examples include advancing the effectiveness of the WTO’s monitoring, negotiating and dispute settlement system functions, or addressing new issues such as climate change, pandemic response and the digital economy, or existing negotiating issues such as agriculture disciplines on fisheries subsidies, and special and differential treatment for developing and least-developed countries within trade.

For full compliance, G7 members must take action on all three components of this commitment. G7 members must secure future prosperity by strongly championing free trade, fair trade and trade reform. Strong actions for free trade include actions such as the passing of domestic policy or legal acts, the lowering of tariffs and the signing of free trade agreements, all that reduce trade barriers. Strong actions for fairer trade include actions such as the filing of complaints of unfair trade barriers through the WTO’s Appellate Board. Actions for a reformed trading system include actively working through the WTO to champion reforms towards a more viable and durable trading system. Weak actions such as verbal affirmations or attending meetings will be counted as partial compliance.

Partial compliance, or a score of 0, will be assigned if the G7 member takes less than strong action in two or three of the aforementioned pillars.

Non-compliance, or a score of −1, will be assigned to the G7 member if it fails to take any efforts towards championing free, fair or reformed trade, or if it takes partial action with only one aspect of this commitment.

On 12 October 2021, Minister Delegate for Foreign Trade and Economic Attractiveness Franck Riester attended the G20 trade ministers meeting in Sorrento. The issues discussed included WTO reform, integrating sustainable development into trade policies, and trade in relation to COVID-19.

On 21 October 2021, Minister Riester attended the G7 Trade Ministers’ meeting in London. He advocated for creating stronger and fairer supply chains in addition to a more sustainable global trade network.

On 26 November 2021, President Macron and Italian Prime Minister Mario Draghi signed an enhanced cooperation treaty to further consolidate the commercial, diplomatic, political and cultural ties between France and Italy. The aim of this agreement is to support and accelerate European integration processes through several bilateral initiatives.

On 2 December 2021, France, alongside over 60 other members of the World Trade Organization (WTO), adopted a declaration on the conclusion of negotiations on services domestic regulation. The aim is to reduce barriers in services trade. The regulation marks the “first new set of services rules agreed in over a quarter of a century.”

On 19 January 2022, President Macron outlined his aims for the EU in his speech at the European Parliament in Strasbourg. Among his goals is making European trade agreements more fair and sustainable. He argues that “mirror measures” must be a standard component of all trade agreements and special considerations must be made to protect biodiversity and prevent exacerbating climate change. These “mirror measures” would hold non-European farmers to the same standard of farming practices as Europe when it comes to pesticides, animal antibiotics and deforestation.

On 28 January 2022, Minister Riester hosted a conference for the WTO. Director-General Okonjo-Iweala delivered a keynote speech calling on governments to use WTO as a tool for fairer and environmentally conscious trade.

On 13 February 2022, Minister Riester hosted a meeting for the European Trade Ministers. The ministers discussed comprehensive reforms to improve the WTO’s functioning and adapt to current day challenges like sustainable development and digital technology, as well as strengthen its ability to combat unfair trade practices.

On 7 March 2022, the French Presidency of the Council of the EU hosted a conference on the Contribution of Trade Policy to Building European Strategic Autonomy. The agenda focused on the possibilities for WTO reform through multilateral trading systems to improve rules-based trade that can prevent unfair, abusive trade practices.

On 24 March 2022, G7 leaders met to discuss Russia’s aggression against Ukraine. They released a statement committing to address disruptions in global agricultural trade and to avoid export bans and other trade-restrictive measures, consistent with WTO rules and notification requirements.

On 4 April 2022, Minister Riester organized the third “Market Access” day to promote the benefits of the EU’s trade agreements and highlight underutilized trade opportunities for businesses. The event was designed to inform professionals about the various trade policy tools available for businesses, such as the Access2Markets information portal available to determine market access, the Single Entry Point available to report trade barriers and the self-assessment tool available to determine Rules of Origin.

On 16 May 2022, France hosted the second Ministerial Meeting of the Trade and Technology Council (TTC) in Paris-Saclay. The objective of the second TTC meeting was to facilitate discussions on trade, economy and technology between the EU and the United States.

France has partially complied with its commitment to secure future prosperity by championing freer, fairer trade within a reformed trading system. France has taken action to champion freer trade by releasing joint statements with current trade partners that reaffirm the principles of free trade. Additionally, France has participated in adopting new rules for the WTO. However, France has failed to take strong action regarding fair trade.

Thus, France receives a score of 0.

United Kingdom: +1

The United Kingdom has fully complied with its commitment to secure future prosperity by championing freer, fairer trade within a reformed trading system.

On 15 June 2021, Prime Minister Boris Johnson and Secretary of State for International Trade Elizabeth Truss signed a free trade agreement with Australia. The deal eliminated tariffs on all UK goods and marked the end to quota and tariff restrictions placed on Australian agricultural goods under EU guidelines. British farmers will be protected by a cap on tariff-free imports for the next 15 years to safeguard domestic industries. The trade agreement will strengthen the relationship between the UK and Australia and their commitment to free trade practices.

On 17 June 2021, Secretary Truss signed a free trade agreement with the US. The agreement ends the historic 17-year dispute that levied retaliatory tariffs on both countries’ products. The suspension will ensure that restrictions on the UK’s exports to the US, valuing GBP550 million, will be lifted for the next five years. The representatives also agreed to collaborate on eliminating unfair trade practices by non-market forces.

On 21 June 2021, Secretary Truss announced the beginning of negotiations with members of the Comprehensive and Progressive Agreement for Trans-Pacific Partnership (CPTPP) for a free trade deal. Extending membership to the UK would lower tariffs on principal British exports like cars, whiskey and produce, which will boost employment in those sectors. By joining, the UK would also be agreeing to the CPTPP’s strong guidelines against unfair trade practices like discrimination against private investors and favoring state-owned enterprise.

On 28 June 2021, Secretary Truss met by video call with Singapore’s Minister in charge of Trade Relations S. Iswaran to begin negotiations on the Digital Economy Agreement (DEA). The DEA would remove barriers to digital trade, ensure companies of the respective countries can trade more efficiently, and allow the UK and Singapore exporters to extend into high-tech markets. Discussions focused on securing free and trusted cross-border data flows whilst maintaining a high standard of data protection.

On 8 July 2021, Minister for International Trade Ranil Jawawardena signed a free trade agreement with Norway, Iceland and Liechtenstein. The agreement lowers import tariffs on some seafood products for the UK and will allow high-skilled British professionals to enter Norway, Iceland and Liechtenstein for work purposes.

On 21 July 2021, the Board of Trade published a report demonstrating how free and fair-trade practices can aid in the international transition to a low-carbon economy. The report urged against green protectionism, and it recommended the UK promote environmentally clean exports overseas and attract foreign investment to develop a greener industrial base in the UK. Secretary Truss commented, “the UK is a leader in green exports and this report shows how free trade, free markets, and free enterprise can be leveraged to counteract green protectionist policies that hold back the global transition to a low-carbon economy.”

On 2 September 2021, Secretary of State for Environment and Rural Affairs George Eustice and Secretary Truss oversaw the opening of Mexico’s market for British pork imports, marking a further reduction in trade barriers between Mexico and the UK. The countries also committed to begin negotiating a new trade deal in the subsequent year which will see greater reductions in tariff and quota restrictions.

On 13 September 2021, Secretary Truss reaffirmed the UK’s commitment to free trade in a press release. She noted that “the path to economic revival does not lie in retreating and re-entrenching but in free trade and free enterprise” arguing that “British employers can only benefit from free trade by selling their products, innovation, capital, and ideas overseas.”

On 13 September 2021, Secretary Truss met with India’s Minister for Commerce and Industry Piyush Goyal to discuss the details for a UK-India free trade agreement. They agreed to continue negotiations on the matter.

On 15 September 2021, the first consultation between the economic ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations and the UK was held. Secretary Truss co-chaired the consultation. They discussed topics on trade and investment including reforming the World Trade Organization.

On 15 September 2021, Minister Jayawardena met with Uruguay’s Foreign Minister Francisco Bustillo. They discussed strengthening bilateral trade and agreed to strengthen ties by formally agreeing to establish the United Kingdom-Uruguay Trade Dialogue.

On 20 October 2021, Prime Minister Johnson and Secretary of State for International Trade Anne-Marie Trevelyan signed a free trade agreement with New Zealand. The agreement removes tariffs on British products such as clothing and machinery. Several high-quality New Zealand goods also became available for British markets at a reduced cost.

On 22 October 2021, Secretary Trevelyan joined G7 Trade Ministers to advocate for open digital markets free from digital protectionism in addition to increasing transparency and fairness in the digital and telecommunications markets. Ministers supported a prohibition of duties on electronic transmissions in accordance with the WTO Moratorium on Customs Duties on Electronic Transmission.

On 25 October 2021, Minister for Trade Penny Mordaunt released a joint statement with Chile’s Minister for Trade Rodrigo Yañez that reaffirmed their commitment to free and fair trade. They granted the use of digital certificates for exporters to cut down on red tape barriers to reduce burdens on businesses. The UK also became the first European country to gain access to some of Chile’s agricultural markets.

On 11 November 2021, Minister Mordaunt upheld the principles of free and fair trade in her speech to the House of Commons.2441 She noted that “trading superpowers have a special responsibility to practice free trade and fair trade to support the multilateral trading system” and proposed the creation of “the most advanced FTA [Free Trade Agreement] in the world” between the UK and the US.

On 2 December 2021, the UK alongside over 60 other WTO members delivered an agreement on Services Domestic Regulation. The agreement will remove barriers to services trade through cutting red tape surround licensing and qualifications.2442

On 9 December 2021, Secretary Trevelyan and Singapore Minister-in-charge of Trade Relations S Iswaran agreed in principle for a digital economy agreement. The agreement will overhaul “outdated trade rules that affect both goods and services exporters.”2443

On 16 December 2021, the UK signed a trade deal with Australia in a virtual ceremony. The free trade agreement lowered tariffs and will help businesses in both countries.2444

On 14 January 2022, the UK and India released a joint statement of the 15th meeting of the India-UK Joint Economic and Trade Committee. They committed to continuing negotiations on a free trade agreement and further discussing other matters such as WTO reform.2445

On 19 January 2022, Secretary Trevelyan, US Secretary of Commerce Gina Raimondo and US Trade Representative Katherine Tai announced the beginning of bilateral trade discussions “to address global steel and aluminium excess capacity.” They agreed to continue discussions to address shared economic challenges in these industries.2446

On 2 February 2021, Secretary Trevelyan visited Israel and the Occupied Palestinian Territories to begin negotiating a new trade deal with Israel.2447 If signed, tariffs will be lower and market access expanded to create freer trade between the UK and Israel.

On 18 February 2022, Secretary Trevelyan launched final negotiations with members of CPTPP, which is one of the largest free-trade groups in the world.2448 She intends to negotiate the removal of tariffs on 99.9 per cent of UK exports to CPTPP countries.

On 23 February 2022, Secretary Trevelyan visited Indonesia to advance negotiations with the CPTPP. She discussed the opportunity to collaborate on sustainable trade by partnering on Jakarta Net Zero, and she emphasized the UK’s priorities for WTO reform.

On 25 February 2022, Secretary Trevelyan visited Singapore to sign the new DEA which will reduce the costs and red tape associated with digital trade. It is the most innovative digital trade agreement signed to date. They also reaffirmed their shared commitment to advancing cooperation between the UK and the CPTPP, ensuring meaningful outcomes are achieved at the 12th WTO Ministerial Conference, and working towards decarbonizing their economies.

On 28 February 2022, Secretary Trevelyan signed the UK-New Zealand free trade deal. The agreement will drop tariffs on 10 per cent of clothing and footwear, 5 per cent on buses, ships, bulldozers and excavators. It will also liberalize tariffs on many environmental goods to ensure continued commitment to the Paris Agreement.

On 10 March 2022, Secretary Trevelyan delivered a keynote speech on maritime trade at the Maritime UK Awards in Glasgow. She emphasized the importance of continuing to eliminate barriers to global commerce and encouraged open markets in the maritime industry. She also noted that the UK will work towards ensuring cleaner, more sustainable maritime trade practices.

On 21 March 2022, Secretary Trevelyan visited US Trade Representative Tai to discuss ways to strengthen transatlantic trading and boost investment between the US and the UK. They focused on finding innovative approaches to trade in the digital and environmental sectors, as well as ensuring that small and medium-sized enterprises share in future trade prosperity. Secretary Trevelyan also identified measures that can be taken to reduce state-level trade barriers to bolster trade opportunities between the two countries.

On 22 March 2022, Secretary Trevelyan negotiated the removal of US section 232 tariffs which will reinstate tariff-free access to the US for UK aluminum and steel exporters. Accordingly, the UK suspended its trade restrictions on US whiskey, blue jeans and motorcycle imports. The UK and US agreed to continue their collaborative efforts to mitigate the issue of global steel excess capacity and market-distorting practices.

On 24 March 2022, G7 leaders met to discuss Russia’s aggression against Ukraine. They released a statement committing to address disruptions in global agricultural trade and to avoid export bans and other trade-restrictive measures, consistent with WTO rules and notification requirements.

On 24 March 2022, Secretary Trevelyan visited Canada’s Minister for International Trade Mary Ng to begin negotiations for an improved trade deal. The new free trade agreement will aim to further promote innovation, the digital economy, environmental sectors and women’s economic empowerment.

On 29 March 2022, Secretary Trevelyan pledged up to GBP35 million to support the implementation of the African Continental Free Trade Area (AfCFTA). The UK’s project will improve trade facilitation and provide trade policy support to the AfCFTA Secretariat and its member states. The African trade bloc will eliminate trade barriers by creating a single continental market which will make it more cost-effective for UK enterprises to export goods and services to the 54 AfCFTA member states.

On 4 April 2022, Secretary Trevelyan delivered a speech at the Nor-Shipping Conference in Oslo. She emphasized the importance of a strong, free trade-oriented partnership with Norway in face of Putin’s invasion of Ukraine, asserting that “trade is how we will join forces with our allies to protect our planet, electrify the global economy, and stand as a bulwark against aggressors.”

On April 25 and 26, Secretary Trevelyan and US Trade Representative Katherine Tai hosted the second US-UK Dialogue on the Future of Atlantic Trade. Both parties worked together to build a roadmap for various areas of trade and strengthen bilateral relations.

The United Kingdom has fully complied with its commitment to secure future prosperity by championing freer, fairer trade within a reformed trading system. The UK has taken action to champion freer and fairer trade by actively renegotiating trade agreements across a range of sectors. Additionally, the UK has taken steps towards creating a reformed trading system by advancing the WTO’s trade rules.

Thus, the United Kingdom receives a score of +1.
